38 - Mahatma Gandhi once said, "Be the change that you ^{wish} ~~want~~ to see in the world." It is a very powerful saying that encourages to make difference in the world around us by living out our vision for it.

u I wholeheartedly agree with this saying, personally. To start seeing changes in our world, we are ought to first be that change. If we want people to do something differently, we have to start doing it ourselves. The other reason I think this saying is true is that unless we take action, we can't make any difference. ~~And if we do not make any efforts to be an example, we can't influence anyone.~~

73 The town that I live in is infamous for being very polluted by garbage. ~~Littering is one of its biggest problems.~~ One day, ~~as I was~~ ^{while I was} walking home from school with some friends, one of them tossed an empty bag of crisps on the ground, and I, having had a personal conviction to not litter ~~all of my life~~, picked it up and threw it ~~in~~ in the trash bin instead. Since then, every time we walked together, we never littered and the streets looked cleaner. If I didn't pick it up that day and give them an example, they would keep polluting my town.
